

Product information

Original oil painting Marlene Dietrich by Natan Elkanovich

Art.Nr.: KUNBD01

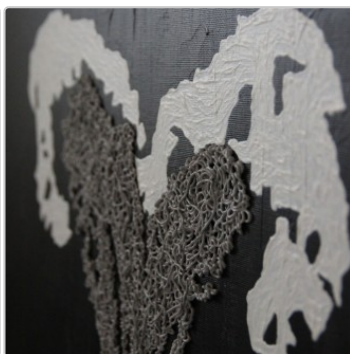

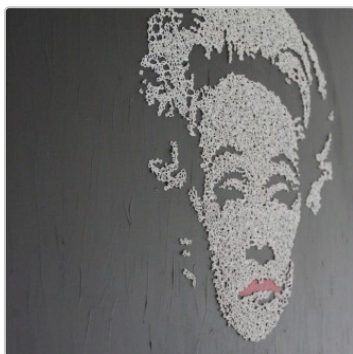

12.900,00 €

incl. 0% VAT incl. Shipping

■ Available immediately

1 in stock

Product information

Dimensions / Technical data:

Approx. dimensions: 100cm wide, 180cm high

Material: Oil, silicone and acrylic on canvas (mounted on wooden frame)

Year: 2002

Artist: Natan Elkanovich, born on 20.04.1966 in Moldavia

Special feature: Natan Elkanovich works with his unique kinetic pop art technique, which combines oil, silicone and acrylic as a material

Edition: Original 01/45, hand-signed

Note: This item is excluded from exchange.

Viewing: You are welcome to view the item by prior appointment.

Note: Sale from private person. Value added tax cannot be shown.

Product description

Marlene Dietrich:

Marie Magdalene Dietrich was born on December 27, 1901 in Berlin-Schöneberg. In May 1923, she married the assistant director Rudolf Sieber. Although they were married for over fifty years and even lived together for a time, their physical relationship ended the day Marlene learned that she was in 'other circumstances', according to her daughter Maria Riva (Meine Mutter Marlene). Her daughter was born in December 1924.

Marlene initially appeared in a dozen silent films before her breakthrough in 1930 with the role of Lola in The Blue Angel. She went to Hollywood in the same year and (not only) shot several classics of film history there with other film greats.

She turned down Goebbels' offer to return to fascist Germany. Instead, she became an American citizen in 1939 and later supported the American soldiers at the front in the fight against Germany. To this day, many Germans have not forgiven her for this. Incidentally, she shared this fate with German Chancellor Willi Brandt.

Although she resumed her film career after the war, she devoted herself increasingly to music and appeared in countless concerts as an acclaimed star.

From 1976 she lived in seclusion in Paris, but two years later she appeared in front of the film cameras once again and shot Beautiful Gigolo, Poor Gigolo with David Bowie.

Marlene Dietrich died alone in her Paris apartment on May 6, 1992. She was buried in Berlin-Friedenau.

Natan Elkanovich

Natan Elkanovich was born in Moldova (former USSR) in the town of Orgeyev (Orhey). He emigrated to Israel with his family in 1976. After secondary school, he studied fashion design and obtained a bachelor's degree at Shenkar College. Since 1995 he has worked as a costume designer in the Israeli television and cinema industry. He is a member of the Israeli's Motion Pictures & Television Academy. In 1999 he exhibited his first drawings in the gallery "Amalia Arbel" in Tel Aviv under the title "Spilt Milk". Natan was selected to participate in the prestigious exhibition artlink@sothebys.com international young art 2002, which took place in Tel Aviv, New York and Amsterdam in January and February 2002. He is represented by the 'Rosenfeld Gallery'. Natan lives and works in Tel-Aviv, Israel.
